DESCRIPTION

Solid wood stool designed by architect Henry Jacques Le Même for a chalet in Megève around 1950. Its geometric silhouette, with a pyramidal base and circular seat, reflects Le Même's architectural approach to furniture design, centered on structure, balance, and simplicity of use.

The seat is upholstered in red Othello velvet by Nobilis, adding warmth and refinement to the clarity of its form. This stool belongs to the corpus of mountain furniture conceived by Le Même, where functionality meets modernist aesthetics.

France, circa 1950.
