DESCRIPTION

Christian Durupt was a renowned French cabinetmaker who worked in the mid-20th century. He was known for his use of high-quality materials and his skillful craftsmanship, which resulted in timeless designs that continue to be admired today. This rare model is an example of his talent, with the use of mahogany, a wood species known for its durability and aesthetic appeal.

The chair features a solid mahogany frame, the four tapered legs offer a solid and elegant base, while the thick seat and the back ensure a certain comfort.

Origin: Méribel, France, circa 1960.
