DESCRIPTION

The Birillo lamp, created by Carlo Nason, is an iconic design piece from the 1970s. This lamp embodies the bold and innovative aesthetic of its era, adding a touch of character and originality to any interior.

It stands out with its blown glass structure, consisting of two white blown glass forms connected by a chromed metal piece. Currently fitted with multicolored bulbs for a psychedelic effect, it can also recover a sense of simplicity when adorned with white bulbs.

Manufacturer: Mazzega circa 1970.
